

Oliver's is pleased to announce Bonterra Winery as the Winery of the Month for March

Located in beautiful Mendocino County, this winery specializes in handcrafted, organically grown wines.

Mendocino County is heaven on earth for grapes. Hot, dry summers, rich soils, and an amazing diversity of plants and wildlife make it the ideal place to grow grapes organically. 25% of grapes grown in Mendocino County are farmed organically, compared to 3% of grapes grown in California overall. Bonterra farms 915 acres, all of which are located within a 30 mile radius of their home, McNab Ranch.

Bonterra passionately believes that organic grapes make better wine. Bonterra has been producing wine from 100% organically grown grapes since 1993. Organic certification means that Bonterra doesn't use any synthetic pesticides or fertilizers and they go through significant auditing every year to make sure all of their practices meet or beat USDA regulations. All of their grapes are grown using certified organic practices, such as composting, cover crops, and biodiversity. The cover crops and biodiversity also make their vineyards beautiful to look at. There aren't just the vines themselves, but olive trees, poppies and lavender as well.

These organic practices produce grapes that offer a quality of fruit and vibrancy of taste that allows them to create wines that express the purity and intensity of each varietal's unique character. You can taste their natural commitment to producing wines of great taste and excitement in every sip of Bonterra, which is why they believe their wines are among the very best you'll experience.
