Founded in 1977, Mycopia Mushrooms has earned its reputation as the premier grower of top quality, flavorful forest mushrooms that are “no longer wild, but far from tame.” Their mushrooms are grown on oak-based substrates in reusable bottles. After the mushrooms are harvested, the spent substrate is recycled and turned into compost that is highly prized by local farmers and wineries. Their mushrooms have been certified as organic and kosher since 2005.

These delicious mushrooms are available year-round at Oliver’s, so no matter what dish you’re making, we’ve got you covered.

OLIVER'S KITCHEN CRIMINI MUSHROOM SOUP 32 oz. $11.49

"If you're a fan of mushroom soup this is an item you just can't pass up. Great flavor, creamy consistency. Everything about this soup makes you feel good. I love using this soup in many different ways. I've used this as a quick base to a "beef stroganoff". Cook up a little beef, ground beef is my go to, and add this to that. Pour over your egg noodles and you've got a great meal in 20 minutes or so. Don't be afraid to pour some of this over your broccoli. Veggies never tasted better."

OLIVER'S MARKET CRAFT BREWERY OF THE WEEK

“By Her Bootstraps is a Belgian White IPA that marries the spicy, citrusy character of a Witbier with the punchy bitterness of an American IPA, resulting in a crisp and complex fusion. The “By Her Bootstraps” name and concept honor the resilient female entrepreneurs of Sonoma County, celebrating the strength and grit required to build something from the ground up. In contrast, the Bell Road Pilsner is a clean, Bohemian-style lager offering a crisp malt profile, while the Hoppy Don IPA leans into a classic West Coast style with bold pine and citrus notes. Together, these brews showcase the family’s ability to blend traditional European techniques with the adventurous hop-forward spirit of California.”
